

GUSTAR CONJUGATIONS & USES

TO LIKE

SYNONYMS: CAER BIEN, ENCANTAR, AGRADAR, LLAMAR

Type	Irregular	Infinitive	Gerund	Past Participle
-AR	NO	Gustar To like	Gustando Liking	Gustado Liked

Take Note: Like other verbs in Spanish, gustar is conjugated based on the subject. However, affective verbs express that the subject causes a reaction or emotion. Prepositional and indirect object pronouns say who likes or dislikes something. Since they're more common, we have only included singular and plural conjugations.

DEFINITIONS & EXAMPLES

GUSTAR

To talk about likes and dislikes
(To like)

Formula

[Indirect object pronoun] + [gustar conjugated] + [subject]

¿Por qué te gustan tanto los carros?
Why do you like cars so much?

A mi mamá le gusta ver televisión.
My mom likes watching TV.

Luis, siempre me has gustado.
Luis, I have always liked you.

Creo que no les va a gustar este platillo.
I don't think they are going to like this dish.

As shown in the examples above, the conjugation of gustar varies depending on the subject that caused an emotion in someone. Check #1. Since cars are plural, gustar is conjugated in plural form. Indirect object pronouns introduce the person who is feeling that emotion.

Take Note: A mí, a ti, a ella and similar terms are known as prepositional pronouns in Spanish. In this case, we use them with indirect object pronouns to emphasize and replace who likes or dislikes something. If this information is unclear, you must mention who you're talking about (a mi mamá, a Luis, etc.)
