ACCENT MARKS FOR COMMANDS IN SPANISH

Note: In Spanish, we always count syllables backwards, from the end of the word to the start (right to left).

KEY POINTS: Spanish commands

- The imperative in Spanish is a verb form used to give commands, instructions, advice, suggestions, and requests.
- In Spanish, the imperative is used with four subject pronouns: tú, usted, vosotros, and ustedes.
- Affirmative commands are used to tell people what to do, whereas negative commands tell people what not to do.

- The imperative endings are the same for
 -ER and -IR verbs.
- With affirmative commands, direct, indirect, and reflexive pronouns must be attached to the verb.
- Commands with more than two syllables have a written accent in the stressed syllable.
- Infinitives in Spanish are used in written signs to give commands.
