

SPANISH 101

CONDITIONAL PERFECT

CONJUGATION & USES

FORMING THE CONDITIONAL PERFECT IN SPANISH

EXAMPLE: DORMIR IN CONDITIONAL PERFECT

Person	Conditional forms of haber	+	Past participle	Conditional tense
Yo	Habría			Yo habría dormido
Tú	Habrías			Tú habrías dormido
Él / Ella	Habría			Él/Ella habría dormido
Nosotros	Habríamos			Nosotros habríamos dormido
Vosotros	Habríais			Vosotros habríais dormido
Ellos / Ustedes	Habrían			Ellos/Ustedes habrían dormido
		+	dormido

Note: '-ado' and '-ido' are the regular past participle endings for -AR and -ER/IR verbs, respectively.

USES OF THE CONDITIONAL PERFECT

KEY POINTS

- The conditional perfect refers to past wishes or possibilities that never took place.
- It conveys what would have happened if things were done differently.

Habría dormido más, pero tenía mucho trabajo.
I would have slept more, but I had a lot of work.

Nos habría gustado viajar más.
We would have liked to travel more.

CONDITIONAL VS CONDITIONAL PERFECT IN SPANISH

CONDITIONAL SIMPLE

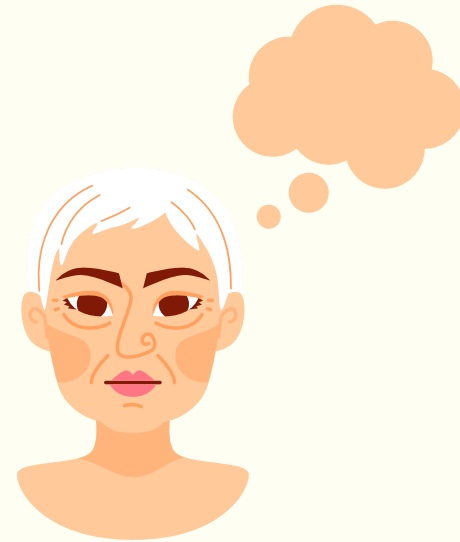

Future or present conditions that are unlikely to happen.

Viajaría más si tuviera más tiempo.
I would travel more if I had more time.

CONDITIONAL PERFECT

Hypothetical past conditions. Can no longer be achieved.

Habría viajado más si hubiera tenido más tiempo.
I would have traveled more if I had had more time.

LINK TO THIS GUIDE

Conditional Perfect Spanish Guide: How to Form & Use It

RELATED GUIDES & RESOURCES TO CHECK OUT

Spanish Conditional Tense: Conjugations, Uses & Examples

 Watch My Lessons on YouTube!  Spanish Immersion YouTube

Learning Spanish: Get My Free Spanish Learning Kit!

Click here to join the Tell Me In Spanish and get your copy of the kit now.